The Legend of Shawnee Spring

Shawnee Spring obtained its name from the Indians who encamped there. A legend grew up about the spring that whoever drank of its waters would some day return. At one time the Shawnees were waging war with an enemy tribe. Owaisa knew that her lover might be killed or taken prisoner. So before he started on the warpath she gave him a drink of the magical waters of the spring, knowing that this would bring him back to her.

Foreword

IT has been said that "To err is human." Inasmuch as we, the editors of the 1933 HANDLIAN, are human, be lenient with your, no doubt, just criticisms of this annual. It has been our aim, in editing this book, to leave with the students a lasting memory of all that is characteristic of student life "On the Hill" and to give to our friends and patrons a picture of student life as we live it. Whether we have succeeded in attaining our aim rests with each individual to decide for himself.

THE SETTLERS CABIN

IN the year 1732 Joist Hite, with his family and fifteen other families, removed from Pennsylvania. They settled on the Opequon about five miles south of Winchester at what is now called Bartonsville.

Dedication

To the men and women whose daily toils were devoted to a service that tended to raise the plane of civilization,

To the men and women whose ideals have been proven worthy of repetition by us who follow,

To the men and women who have given all to the cause of civilization,

To the Settlers of the Valley, we, the class of 1933, dedicate this issue of THE HANDLIAN.

THE COMING OF THE WHITE MAN

In 1726 a line of covered wagons forded the Potomac River at what is now Shepherdstown, and slowly wound up the bank of the southern side. The first settlers, a small party of Germans from Pennsylvania, had come to the Valley. They led the way, and soon others followed the trail that they had blazed.

THE MEETING WITH THE INDIANS

The Shawnees were a war-like tribe, yet there is no record that they were hostile to the settlers when they first came to the Valley. For several years prior to 1726 they had been in contact with a Dutch trader, John Van Meter. Perhaps the guns and knives which he sold them, and with which they routed their enemies, the Delawares, gave them a kindly feeling toward the white man. How glad the small band of settlers must have been to return the Indian's sign of friendship.

MISS CORNWELL

There are so many things we may forget,
The rules of texts and hours in class; and yet,
Much else, such as the blasphemy of a child
Towards truths of school, and stubborn, wild
Indifference to transforming moral thoughts;
We may forget, also, the ideals men have brought,
Ideals that nations fought for, died for, wars,
Geometric spheres, or laws that govern sky and stars.

But what can never die, what in our hearts shall sing
In long, undoing hours of spring that follows spring,
Is memory, tear-kissing memory and imperishable dreams
Of your sympathy deep and lasting, streams
Of humor that gladdened the hours, so dull grown,
Of adolescent youth, the kind and patient full-blown
Criticism of children errors that make all dear.
Forget? Not these and you, teacher and friend so dear.

MR. PARSONS

If we could but define the term "O. K."
That says so much in such a little way;
If we could borrow all of Webster's,
His vivid nouns and swiftly moving verbs.

If we could paint with sure, inspired brush,
If we could play with sweet, quite certain touch,
If we could write with gifted quill or pen,
We'd tell of "Johnny," sponsor, guide and friend.

AS WE WERE IN “1930”

Class Poem

How can we go—how can we stay—what can we say?
For now the very day that we longed so for has come at last—at last? Alas, so soon!
For we must leave you, dear, dear Handley,
and go our way into the world; away
from these classrooms dear, and loved halls,
where all our joyful days were passed.
Here, we have worked, and played, and laughed.
We go from those whom we have grown to know so well;
our teachers and our classmates, whose guidance,
aid, and teachings helped us win our way.
As now we go, what shall we say—goodbye?

Ah! let us not bid farewell this day; no,
it is not farewell, O Handley, for we shall never part. Wherever we may chance to stay, however far we may seem to be,
there is something of you, dearest school,
that will be forever with us, where'er we are.
Memories, dear memories, all the little things
we used to do that made our life the fuller.
You are a part of us, and we of you.

O Handley School, most beautiful of the beautiful,
We raise your name to the stars—forever praised.

NELIA BEVERLEY.

CLASS SONG

Music by Sylvia Williamson

Our time has now come for leav — ing; On-ward we must go our way, As we say good bye dear Hand-ley, Dawn breaks, of a new day. 'Tis sad to think of de-part-ing, We who have been here so long; But we must fol-low our chal-lenge, So we sing our farewell song.
Chorus:
Dear old Hand-ley, Scene of our happiest days, Al-ma Mater, Pride of our hearts for al-ways. In our part-ing we give a sigh for the past; For mem'ries dear that are linger-ing near of Hand-ley High.

History of the Class of 1933

While writing this history it has suddenly dawned upon me that we are about to lose an old and staunch friend, a friend who gave us our real start in life and who has practically monopolized our minds and time for the last twelve years. No longer will her stately columns beckon us within, no longer will her halls and corridors lead us on, and no longer will our anxious ears await the notes of the various bells. It's all over. We are now gone beyond all this. Whither? Do you know? How expectantly we awaited graduation, but now, somehow, a faint tinge of sorrow at leaving our comrades and good times steals over our triumphant hearts.

As my mind goes back over these sadder things there flashes through my memory things of the past, as if to say consolingly, "You've done your bit. Give others a chance."

Most of us spent our first days, and such long days they were, at the John Kerr Building. What a picture we must have been with our hair ribbons, knee pants, and staring eyes and gaping mouths! After three long years, in which it became known to our simple minds that education was a pleasure, not a bore, we graduated to the new Handley Building. How important we felt with such a school. Surely we should all be great men and women! Finally, after due worry and procedure, we attained our envious position in the first year of Junior High. The march had begun. Seniorhood was coming closer.

Then in the tenth grade we were confronted with something quite new to all of us, the task of organization. It was this year that we elected Miss Edith Cornwell and Johnny Parsons as sponsors and chose our motto to be "Each for the other, and all for the class."

Next year the seriousness and grandeur of graduation was impressed upon us by our contact with our elder brothers, the Seniors. That year was full of fun. The preparation for the "prom," the rehearsing for commencement, the bonfire, all stand out clearly in our minds. How we envied the dear old Seniors of '32.

Now that very time, graduation, has come for us. We are leaving and are happy, but yet that feeling of breaking off, losing of fellowships, is still prevalent. But resolutely we turn our faces and march on into the future.

Undergraduates

THE SPINNING LESSON

In the days of the first settlers in the Valley there were no schools; whatever the children learned was taught them by their parents. The boys learned from their fathers how to hunt and shoot and farm, The girls helped their mothers with the housework, and soon became proficient in cooking, spinning and weaving. In the evening, after the day's work was done, the treasured Bible was brought out, and by the light of the fire the children learned to read.

THE QUILTING BEE

A Quilting Party was an important social function in the lives of our pioneer grandmothers. From all the neighboring houses they gathered, each one proud of the tiny stitches which she could take, and eager to help in the quilting. Laughter and talking kept pace with their needles, and perhaps as a special treat the hostess, if she were so lucky, brought out her quaint earthenware teapot and made tea.

THE WRESTLING MATCH

The pioneers had their athletic contests, just as we do today. Shooting, running, wrestling, and the shot-putt were some of the most popular. The village green or the open space in front of the courthouse must often have been the scene of such a contest.

LEAGUE GAMES

Waynesboro 13 October 22 Handley 0

The Handley "Judges" opened the C. V. A. L. season by losing to Waynesboro High School. Both touchdowns were scored by Waynesboro in the first period of the game, one as a result of a fumble and the other from a bad punt. From this time on the game became a deadlock, neither team being able to make any consistent gains, both being forced to punt frequently. The Handley supporters were more than pleased with the excellent defensive work of the green and inexperienced "Judges," especially of the line, which was wholly new with the exception of Armel.

Hagerstown 6 October 29 Handley 25

In the second C. V. A. L. game an improved Handley team had no trouble in disposing of Hagerstown. The Marylanders scored first by reason of a fumble on the part of the "Judges." From that point on, however, Handley showed its superiority in every branch of the game. Two touchdowns each were made by Garber and Potts. The only extra point made came as a result of a pass to Potts. Consistent gains from scrimmage were made by Lake, while Fletcher and Cahill, ends, also aided by their pass catching.

Allegany 31 November 12 Handley 7

In the third C. V. A. L. game Handley was crushed by Allegany High. The Cumberland team showed themselves to be far superior in every way. Garber scored a touchdown for the "Judges" by a line plunge, the extra point being added by Lee Garber. Defensively Handley was very ragged, although due credit must be given the almost perfect offense of the Allegany team.

Martinsburg 14 November 24 Handley 7

The last C. V. A. L. game went to Martinsburg High. The "Judges" started the game with a bang. Potts carried the opening kick-off to the mid-stripe, where the Handley backs, aided in no small way by the line, carried the ball by line plunges to Martinsburg's 26-yard line. Here Potts heaved a pass to Lake, who scored. The extra point was made by Garber on a plunge. Martinsburg then started an offensive which resulted in two touchdowns with extra points. Handley threatened in the fourth quarter with an aerial attack featuring Garber, Lake, Stine and Potts, but was stopped within thirty yards of a goal when a juggled pass to Fletcher was intercepted. Shortly thereatfer the final whistle blew.

NON-LEAGUE GAMES

Alumni 13 September 23 Handley 0

The Alumni defeated the "Judges."

McKinley High 47 October 1 Handley 0

The strong Washington eleven had no difficulty in disposing of the Handley team. Tech had little opposition and scored in every period.

Davis 6 October 31 Handley 0

Handley suffered defeat in the very last minutes of play when Davis High completed a long forward pass to score.

R. M. A. 6 November 4 Handley 19

S. V. A. 0 December 2 Handley 0

Handley and S. V. A. played to a scoreless tie in a game arranged for charity. Each team found itself within scoring distance once, but failure marked each attempt.

Prospects for the 1933 Baseball Season

As THE HANDLIAN goes to press it is too early to do more than speak of our baseball prospects. For several years Handley has not had a baseball team. This year, due to an unusual amount of enthusiasm among the fans in the student body, it is hoped that we shall have a most successful team.

Fortunately we have among us several experienced players. Lefty Lake, pitcher; James Thrift; catcher, and Gordon Armel all played with the "Judges" several years ago. Mike Garber has not only played with the "Judges," but played for the semi-pros last season.

Among our new material we also see some likely prospects. Bill Harris has played on the Berryville High School team, William Anderson and Hugh Crisman were members of the Winchester Junior Legion team, and Walden Resseguie plays on an amateur team.

We feel sure that as the season progresses, under the direction of Mr. Yates, who has proven his ability as a baseball coach, many other stars will be developed. Therefore THE HANDLIAN predicts a most successful baseball season for the year 1932-33.

THE TOWN CRIER

The town crier was a familiar and important figure in the days when Winchester was a frontier town. At all hours of the day and night his stentorian cry, "Hear ye, hear ye," could be heard, and the summons never failed to produce a group of curious, perhaps anxious people, eager to hear the news.

Joke Editor Turns Columnist

Well, folksies, it seems that "Germ Processed" motor oil is the latest thing in lubricants, and jesh to think of all the millions 'n' millions of poor 'ittle germies that have been getting all meshed up in our gears. . . . Robert Dewitt almost drowned the other night when the pillow slipped, the bed spread, and he fell into the spring . . . Lipstick is a little red ticket one gets for not parking properly . . . A synonym is a word you can use when you can't spell the other one . . . They say John Rhodes has gone hunting; he must be after another dear . . . Wonder what all the ants do for social relaxation in winter with no picnics to go to? . . . Mr. Browning frequents the Golden Glow to collect data for what—question marks . . . It is said that on some island the natives use fish for money; can you imagine what a sloppy mess they must have getting gum out of a machine? . . . Thurman Potts mends his shattered nerves to the soothing strains of a violin . . . Lips that touch liquor never tell where they get it . . . Professors are hired bits of camouflage stuck around to give an athletic club the complexion of a college . . . Who keeps June Martindale parked in front of the telephone on Friday nights? . . . And whose "time" is she keeping? . . . The height of futility is a Chinaman with yellow jaundice . . . Mr. Hale always called a spade a spade until he dropped one on his foot . . . A proposal for marriage, like murder, is seldom premeditated . . . A parasite is a person who goes through a revolving door without pushing . . . Mr. Finley thinks Spanish is a great improvement to our school system . . . Wonder why? . . . We're expecting Kenneth Robinson and Earl Lake to have it out any day now . . . I'm hoping both Virginias will be on the spot to cheer . . . Doncha think Albert (Einstein is the last) is a keen name for Horace Hott? . . . And is he a whizz at Physics? . . . Many a romantic suit is pressed under the cloak of night . . . Let's throw a couple of bouquets to the cafeteria cashiers, who, despite our hopes, have never given us more change than was due us . . . And to Doris "Gun"-ningham, because of her undying effort to convince everyone that she knows absolutely nothing about practically everything . . . Mr. Quarles says he can't afford a new hat; I guess he'll be talking through the old one for another season . . . And then there's the farmer who sued a railroad company because the trains went so slow the passengers leaned out of the windows and milked the cows . . . We're waiting for some worn-out radio listener to write the great American protest, "I'm a Fugitive From a Chain Broadcast" . . . And then there's that cute little brunette who calls her B. F. "Insomnia" because he keeps her awake most of the night . . . Our History teacher's pet ambition is to give one of his naughty, naughty students a good old-fashioned spanking (name furnished on request) . . . Walden Resseguie seems to have a soft spot in his heart for Washington, but Toodie had better look to her laurels, for he doesn't balk at giving the fair maidens of this school the merry run-around . . . A bulletin on babies states that they should never be kissed on the mouth; well, not until they are sixteen, anyway . . . The only exercise Miller Fletcher gets is running up bills and jumping at conclusions . . . The nastiest boy I know is one who smokes a pipe in an Austin . . . June Mason and Harry Dieckman were sitting justlikethis in the movies not long ago—but this isn't gossip any more . . . They call "Gracie" Kramer the "Thief of Bad Gags" . . . If you had to keep in step with a four-footed animal, should you keep in step with his front or hind legs? Who was that lady I saw you with last night? . . .

Getting out our HANDLIAN is no picnic.
If we print jokes, folks will say we're silly,
If we don't, they say we are too serious,
If we publish original matter, they say we lack variety,
If we are rustling news, we are not attending to business,
If we don't print contributions, we don't show proper consideration,
If we do print them, the book is full of junk.
Like as not, some fellow will say we swiped this from some other source. So we did!

COAL

Good coal must be mined from a rich vein. Bituminous deposits within the ground vary greatly as to quality. Our coal comes from mines which are acknowledged to contain the very finest coal in the United States.

You will get more heat from every ton, have fewer ashes to haul out, and save from 10 to 15 per cent. on your fuel cost. Place your order at once.

WHAT IS SUCCESS?

To have a definite purpose in life—to suffer bravely and without complaint.

To live nobly—to wrong no man—to keep the conscience unsullied and the heart pure, and yet not parade your goodness to the world. To mingle with the saint and not become self-righteous—to mingle with the sinner and not become vicious. To feel kinship with all humanity—good and bad.

To perform your work uncomplainingly—to accept criticism without resentment and to give it without malice. To give both body and mind a daily cleaning.

To recognize the rights of others—to learn that love is a constructive force in one's life and hate a destructive force. To have a kindly sympathy for dumb animals—to forget self in the service of others, and to feel at the close of the day that though your performance has not been altogether praiseworthy, you are just a little nearer the man or woman you would like to be.

THIS IS SUCCESS.
